STRATEGY OF THE MONTH

ASKING CLARIFYING QUESTIONS

Clarifying questions do not have a 'yes' or 'no' answer. Instead, they encourage the speaker to tell you more. Remember, you are not a detective trying to find out who is right or wrong: you are a mediator trying to help both sides understand the other’s situation in order to reach a peaceful resolution.

TAP SPOTLIGHT

The mediators of Whitten Middle School recently wrote and performed this skit for the morning announcements to raise awareness about TAP at their school.

Student 1: Hey, ________ what’s up? How is the new school year going?

Student 2: Hey ________. It’s going alright. It would be great, but there is already some stuff getting started that I’m trying not to get into.

Student 1: Already? School just started! What?

Student 2: Well, somebody told me that Shay wants to fight me because some other girls have been telling her I want to fight her. The other day in the cafeteria when she saw me, she rolled her eyes at me and then started whispering to her friends.

Student 1: Wow! That’s a lot of mess and school just started! Well, you know TAP is now available to us?

Student 2: What’s TAP?

Student 1: TAP stands for Talk About the Problems, and it is a program where students here at Whitten are trained to talk to other students about their conflicts, and they come up with a solution to solve their problems.

Student 2: I don’t want everybody knowing my business.

Student 1: In TAP, the mediators are taught to keep everything confidential.

Student 2: That sounds good, because I really don’t want to snap on her and get suspended. What do I need to do?

Student 1: Oh, just let your teacher know that you have a conflict with another student, and you want to go through TAP to try to solve the problem. The teacher will fill out a TAP referral and give it to Counselor Brown who is also the TAP coordinator.

Student 2: Thanks for all your help. And you are right, this is a better solution than getting in a fight and getting some days at home.

Student 1: Yeah, you know you need to stay in school cause we have nine weeks exams this week!

Together: That’s right TAP is back! If you have a problem, let TAP help you solve it!
